The GPS helps guide investment in transport by providing a longer term strategic view of how we prioritise things in the transport network, and why. We welcome your thoughts on all elements of the draft GPS however there are some parts of the GPS we would like to draw your attention to:

The strategic direction

- The draft GPS has four strategic priorities; access, safety, environment and value for money.
- Safety and access have been given higher priority than the other priorities. We are interested in feedback on this prioritisation.

- There are two new activity classes; rapid transit and transitional rail.
